Just passed PMP Exam
By Wesley F. Vasey
I'm a baby boomer who just passed the PMP exam on the first try. I couldn't see spending $2,500 for one of those boot camp courses, so I bought three books from Amazon, printed my copy of the PMBOK, and started my self-study program.

For exam prep purposes, Head First Pmp: A Brain-Friendly Guide to Passing the Project Management Professional Exam was by far the best. The approach is a little unusual, but the combination of pictures, humor and active exercises really works to help you learn the material. The practice exercises and the full 200 question test were challenging enough to make the real exam seem relatively easy. You can also take the practice test online if you want.

For the purpose of self-studying for the exam, I'd have to give this book top ratings. It definitely helped me.

This should be the first book that you read in preparing for the PMP exam!
By L. C Glover
Overview:

I just passed the PMP exam -- 4th edition of the PMBOK based. The test does require quite a bit of preparation. I have many years of project management experience, so I have a strong practical background. The PMBOK covers a very large body of material which is summarized at a high level in the PMBOK. You must have a combination of practical experience and extensive book knowledge of the PMBOK to pass the exam.

I would start with this book before reading the PMBOK material. The approach in the book is very effective and gives you a very solid overview of the key PMBOK items. After studying this book and doing the practice test in the back, I would then suggest that you go over the PMBOK 4th edition several times followed by doing a lot of practice tests. Practice tests are critical so you can figure out how to properly interpret what the question is asking.

Appoach:

The book uses a series of techniques -- stories, use cases, crossword puzzles, flash card type quizzes (a range of memonic tricks). It may seem a bit odd but it does really work. The reason why I say start with this book is that you need to have solid overview of all the subject areas and processes before you try to connect lots of detailed information that makes up the PMBOK knowledge space.

There are many other books out there to study for the PMP exam. But, if the book does not take a top-down approach, you can very quickly get confused with the PMBOK terminology and processes.

There is a large amount of information available on the internet. When you are taking the practice tests, you should make a list of any terms you are not familiar with and then look them up later. This is a very helpful way to get a feel for the scope and level of detail that you need to know about items defined in the PMBOK and project management world.

First step to PMP Certification !!!
By Prasad Nagaraja
If you are planning on buying this book, you are probably aspiring/preparing for PMP. I did the same couple of months earlier and glad my plan and effort was helpful.

I was suggested this book by one of my friend. It provides the highlights and good overview of the PMP certification. You will have to go through this book once to get a fair idea about the topic. If you are planning to take up PMP and complete it seriously, you will have to spend atleast 3 - 4 months of rigorous effort. Be aware that your best chance of completing is the first try. Give your best and understand the concepts. If you dont get it right first time, put more time and effort.

1st step: Head First PMP - This is a easy book to study and helps grasps high level overview and concepts.
2nd step: Rita Mulcahy - Go through once. You have to complete the excercises and questions at end of each chapter to get familiarity with the kind of questions.
3rd step : PMBOK - Go through once concentrate on concepts, defenistions and terminologies.
4th step: You should now start going through sample questions through various websites. Make note of your weak areas.
5th step: Rita Mulcahy - Now concentrate more on topics which you are weak and glance through others.
6th step: PMBOK - Now concentrate more on topics which you are weak and glance through others.
7th step: Take PMStudy 4 sets of 200 questions each for 12 days and find out what kind of questions you need to concentrate.

Good Luck with your preparation.
