Responding to Art: Form, Content, & Context is designed to excite and interest students with minimal knowledge of art and limited confidence in responding to it. To this end, the book starts at the students' introductory level and sets out to stimulate their interest and active participation. From the onset, Responding to Art integrates art and design forms that the students are already familiar with and have some interest in: including CD covers, magazine advertisements, fashion styles, websites, crafts, product design, and folk art. In addition, the book engages students and builds their confidence by incorporating into the opening chapter responses to art by introductory-level students like themselves. This sends an immediate message to the students that their own thoughts and feelings are valid, valued, and diverse. With expanded interest, confidence, and knowledge, students are prepared for more challenging art forms, information, and concepts.

Accessible Art History

By Patricia Dale

Robert Bersson has written a clear and accessible book on art history, incorporating hundreds of illustrations. His choices are relevant, linking the reader to the intricate evolution of visual arts on a continuum through history.

For the art historian, the art educator, and the art lover, Worlds of Art is a remarkable resource.

I love the product.

By Berniece R Davis

I do love the product, its size and the sleekness of the textbook. It does meet my expectation per viewing the product on line, as well as the price.

I love the textbook.

Informative and worth to keep after classes

By Liz

I chose to keep this book because there's plenty of info to keep me reading and drawing. The pictures are glossy and educational, and the shape it came in was great.
